THE STOCK MARKET

The North River Bank Fails.

BIRCHELL TO HANG TO-MORROW.

Allan G. Thurman's Seventy-Seventh Birthday.

Toasts and Responses by Representative Democrats.

The Stock Market.

New York, Nov. 13.-The stock market opened unexpectedly weak. North American was 23% points lower -at 16-and on enormous sales declined to 8, rallied to 13 and again reacted to 12. The general list showed on opening a decline of one-half to two and a half.

10:30-The market has become comparatively quiet, and generally the list after a fractional decline from the opening, has recovered. The lowest point touched by North American was 7; it is now 111/2. The tone of the market is firm, with strong steady advances in progress.

11 A. M.-A confident feeling has restored activity which increased toward the end of the hour, while prices advanced more rapidly, the gains over the lowest prices of the early dealings extending to 21/2. Atchison, Northern Pacific preferred and Rock Island were the most prominent in the upward movement, which carried most of the list beyond the prices of last evening. The market at 11 was active and strong at the highest figures of the hour.

The Post says: "Early prices for stocks both in London and in this market were lower-the effect of the suspension of the North River Bank yesterday, together with the understanding that its losses would require it to be wound up. Later, when it was known that the fortnightly settlements in London had been completed without failure, and the Bank of England rate remained unchanged, there was a general recovery, and by 11:30 nearly every stock on the list except North American, went up to last night's prices, and many above, notably Northern Pacific preferred, Western Union, Rock Island and Northwestern "

At noon money was tight at 12 per cent., with a downward movment. Later in the hour North American retired to 9, but the general list was fairly well held. At noon the market was active and steady at small fractions better than the opening.

All sorts of stories are going around regarding the affairs of the North ing. The cashier stated that, although American. Allen G. Thurman's 77 Anniver-sary Celebrated. By Associated Press.]

COLUMBUS, (Ohio) Nov. 13.-To-day marks the 77th anniversary of the birth of Allen G. Thurman, and the Democrats of the nation have made the occasion one to do homage to the distinguished mentor. At the armory this evening a thousand guests representing the supreme intelligence and leadership of the party, will be seated at a banquet to be given by the Thurman Club. The city is in gala attire, and from the summit of the Capitol waves the stars and stripes, and across the principal streets and in front of a thousand dwellings are suspended flags, banners and floral decorations. From early morning every incoming train brought a contingent of prominent Democrats from abroad. Ex-President Grover Cleveland came in on an early train and later called on Thurman. Cleveland assured the day from all quarters of the country in person, by letters and by wire were but spontaneous expressions of a grateful people toward one whose proud unswerving career has won for him alike the veneration of his party and the admiration of the nation. hope, Judge, said Cleveland, "you may be spared many years of usefulness to see the fullest fruition of your doctrines and your teachings. Thurman expressed his hearty appreciation of the meeting. At 11 o'clock a public reception took place at the Governor's office where ex-President Cleveland met many distinguished representatives of that party. The reception to Cleveland at the Capitol lasted till 12:30. The multitudes passed in review before him and shook his hand,

An informal dinner was subsequently tendered Cleveland by Governor Campbell, Congressman Springer Daniel Lamont, and Congressman Onthwaite. At the banquet this evening, an address of welcome will be delivered by John J. Wentz, President of the Thurman Club, and Joseph H. Outhwaite, toast master. The order killed. of the toasts and responses will be: Our Guest, Allen G. Thurman; Citizenship in America, Grover Cleveland; Future Public Economy, General Thomas Ewing; The Senate, Senator McDonald; The Early Ohio Bar, Hon. R. A. Harrison; American Statesman, Senator Carlisle; Democracy in America, Hon. W. C. P. Breckenridge; The House of Representatives, Hon. W. K. Wilson; Democracy of the Future, ternally. It is feared he will die. Hon. Don M. Dickinson of Ohio, and Gov. Campbell. A number of extempore addresses will be made.

Tammany's Victory.

In view of recent events in Washoe county the following on "Tammany's Victory" in New York, from the Salt Lake Tribune, is timely: "The most remarkable victory of this campaign is that of Tammany. The result was astonishing to the men of New York city. Against it was combined every decent element of the city, and yet it triumphed. On the registration it was beaten before election. At 6 o'clock on the evening of election day the Tammany chiefs gave up that they were lost, and yet they won. They won in the face of the fact that of all the corrupt organizations on earth the organization of Tammany, as exemplified in the rule of the City of New York, is the most repulsive. It is in fact a combination to rob the city. There is not a tax-payer in New York city who does not know that the city is plundered of millions of dallars every year by the dishonesty of its officials, and yet, with the registration in their favor, the decent (?) men of New York wou.a not on election day turn out and stamp that institution into the ground. Men in this region who do not know what the means, who do not understand its significance at and lame backs, and they have invariably all, who never would approach afforded certain and speedy relief. They election booth except under orders, affect to deplore terribly the possibility of having that blessing taken from them because they give a truer allegiance to another power than they do to the Government of the United States. But in New York City the intelligent men, the men who pay taxes, the men who wear good clothes, the meu who have heavy bank accounts, by hundreds and thousands stayed away from the polls on Tuesday last because they did not wish to get down with the common herd and express their wish through the ballot. If it were possible, the right of those men to handle the ballot at all ought to be suspended for five years; because that same organization that won its triumph in New York City last Tuesday, has more than once de-

ONE of our Democratic contemporaries proposes to attack the tariff in detail in the Fifty-third Congress and abolish or reduce duties on certain articles by special enactments instead of wrestling with a general tariff bill. Among the articles on which duty should be abolished it includes silver lead ore. How, says the Bulletin, will this meet with the views of American miners in the base metal districts, who see in the enforcement of what should always have been interpreted as the law the hope of a revival of their inindustry? polls and vote."

THERE were not many less than three hundred who were "influenced," either with glittering gold or in a "business way," to vote at the last election contrary to their honest sentiments, right here in Reno. This community claims to be high minded and moral, and if any one should accuse them of being for sale on any proposition, they would get up on their ear. Still the fact remains. Who says we do not need the Ausstraiian ballot saytem?

THE GAZETTE is in receipt of some very interesting railroad statistics compiled by the Intestate Commerce Commission. It shows the standing of every railroad in the United States, and we shall review the work so far as our own State roads are concerned and give the people some facts that they are not acquainted with.

Between 10 and 11 o'clock Sunday night, at Bodie, Johany Lee shot and killed his stepfather, William Rienborts, in the Temple Saloon. The cause of the shooting was a dispute at the gambling table over a dollar. It is generally supposed, though, that family trouble is really at the bottom of it. Lee gave himself up, and is now in jail.

Rienborts was a very industrious man, and, although much given to drink and quarrelsome when in liquor, he always provided for his family, so far as is known. He leaves a large family of small children.

Examine C. J. Brookins' stock of every variety of blank books, pens and pencil tablets and both copying and writing inks.

The Riverside continues to sustain its reputation as being more than first-class in every respect. A free bus meets all passenger trains.

The liberal patronage being enjoyed by the Arcade shows that people know where to go for a nice room, a clean soft bed and a first class meal. Besides his Boca and Sacramento beer and all kinds of imported malt liquors, J. J. Becker carries a full line of the best foreign and domestic wines. E. C. Leadbetter's stock of both green and parched coffee is not excelled by any grocer in the State. He also carries a full line of the best breakfast meals.

A MUSICAL FREDIGY.

Playing the Plano Perfectly at Five Years of Age.

Little Elsa Breidt Astonishes Musiciani by Her Remarkable Performances How Her Genius Was Discovered

Dressed in a light blue frock, a pretty straw hat and tiny boots, from the tops of which hung golden tassels, was gray-eyed Elsa Breidt, the five-year-old musical prodigy and daughter of Julius Breidt, of 2510 Cottage Grove avenue, says the Chicago Herald. She was ready to play for a party of musicians, and as she ran up to the piano in her home she laughed merrily at her mother, who was to assist her. Speaking in German, Mrs. Breidt asked the child to play something from Schumann. The child at once dashed into "The White Horseman," which she played in perfect time and tune. The execution of the little hands was marvelous, and as the child played piece after piece, finally closing her impromptu recital with a perfect little melody of her own composition, the musicians present wanted to catch her up in their arms and hug her. Then she played piano duets with her mother, and after a time Mr. Breidt, the watchmaker, came in, took down his old violin, put on a new string or two, and then father and daughter plunged into "The Boulanger March," the petite phenomenon playing a most perfect piano accompaniment to the air from the father's violin. The march finished, the father spoke of the "Ave hiaria," and the child, without a word, began the introduction to the Bach-Gounod composition. Although it had been many weeks since father and child had played together, yet Elsa never missed a note or sounded a false one to the end of the difficult accompaniment. She played the music exactly as it is written and with wonderful tect and expression.

Little Elsa has been petted by Sherwood and Lilly Lehmann, raved over by D'Albert and marveled at by all who have seen and heard her. Only once or twice has she appeared in public, playing once for a class of pupils from one of the musical colleges and again at one of Mr. Sherwood's recitals. The latter often visits her at her humble home, and D'Albert wants her to come at once to his home in Germany and receive a thorough musical education.

"When Elsa was two years old, I one day found her singing the air I was playing at the piano," said her mother. "I tried another and found that with little effort she could follow any air. When she was large enough to sit alone on the piano stool I would let her strike the keys, and she immediately learned to play chords, and before she was three years of age could carry parts of airs correctly. When three and a half years old she was playing accompaniments to her father's violin, and very soon learned to play the accompaniment to the 'Ave Maria' which you have just heard. Then I noticed if I played sentimental or lively music it affected her strangely. In fact, we can not play pathetic airs, as the tears come to her eyes and she is much agitated. She is strong and healthy and has never been sick a day. She is also very full of life, and enjoys herself much as other children do, but if anybody is playing, wherever she is, she listens with mouth eyes and ears wide open. She will play any ordinary composition almost abso lutely correct after having beard it

"We never have to play a piece more than twice for her to learn it," said Mrs. Breidt, "While she is taking every note by ear she also closely watches the hands of the player. She does not seem to care for dance music. We have not permitted her to practice much this summer on account of the heat, and we never force her to do any thing.

"It has been about six months since she began to compose or improvise," continued the mother. "One day there was a terrible rain and thunder-storm, and when it was over she went to the piano and played the wildest sort of an air, which she made up. She will climb on to the stool and begin singing softly some measure or strain that has come into her head, and after humming it over several times she plays it. That's the way she composes her pieces.' Julius Breidt is a fine-looking German, forty-three years old. He has lived in this city since he was five years old, and has been a watchmaker and jeweler since he was fourteen. Six years ago he married Miss Bertha Schoenfeld, a comely German girl, and on May 28, 1885, Elsa, the little musical genius, was born. She is their only

A Novel Wedding Journey

A novel method of spending a honey moon has recently been added to the list of unique wedding journeys in coaches; on house-boats or yachts. A young Viennese bridegroom procured for the trip a new furniture van with three horses and a driver. The interior he fitted up in a most daintily luxuriant way with every comfort and convenience dear to the feminine heart. Just how the light was supplied is not easy to conjecture, for the ordinary furniture van has no windows. Possibly electricity may have diffused its soft radiance from depending globes of roseate hue, or the isolated lovers may have lived only in the soft light of each other's eyes. The cooking problem would also arise to any one but lovers, but whether the driver united the culinary art with that of handling the reins, or whether the young woman fierself was a cookingschool graduate is not known. Any way, the pair expect to spend a two months' honeymoon at a cost of little more than $100 a month, rambling about the country in their own private conveyance, with buffet accommodations.

THE HAPPIEST HOUR.

Some Well-Known Women Answered an Interesting Question. Some time ago Edward W. Bok, of the Ladies' Home Journal, submitted to a number of the best-known American and European women the question: "Which, in your opinion, is the happiest hour of a woman's life?" This question is really the most unique of a long list of questions concerning wom-en, their feelings and motives, that are torturing the masculine mind. The answers were no less unique and full of interest.

Louise Chandler Moulton said in reply: "But I honestly think that real happiness comes to a woman only hand in hand with love. * * When she begins to feel that she begins to be tremulously, deliciously, deliriously happy. But that is only the beginning. When her troth is plighted-is that her happiest moment? She does not think so then; for she is looking forward to her bridal morning. The new life begins. Is that, then, the happiest moment? Hardly. A year-a year of mutual forbearance; of getting well acquainted-a happy year; and now they ook into each other's eyes fearlessly. They are one at last, and for all time! "Surely that is the happiest moment? I had made up my mind to say so; but

"Ah, I think, after all, the happiest moment is when love is a sweet, shy new-comer, and hope leads it by the Rose Terry Cooke says: "I believe the happiest hour of a woman's life is her last. Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney thinks the happiest hour depends upon which woman it is, and does not think her happiest hour has yet come.

"The Duchess" can not decide—there are so many blissful hours in life for most of us. But, she, too, thinks "To love, and to feel oneself beloved—that is indeed to know the best of life."

Jenny June writes: "Twice in my life I have experienced moments of su preme exaltation, when all material things seemed at a distance from me, and I was only alive to the perception and influence of the profound emotion excited by the circumstances and environment. One of these occasions was on first arriving at Stratford-on-Avon, the second while hearing 'Parsifal' at Bayreuth. Since then I have had a dim idea of the happiness we shall know when we can see, feel and understand." Mrs. Frank Leslie thinks it is in the expectation of reaching the "top brick of the chimney" that the happiest hour is begun; "and, if by some prodigious effort we secure it, we find it sooty, bat-tered, coarse, and clumsy, and we throw it out of the window," and the Happiest Hour of Life is over!

YOUNG CHUMP'S BEARD.

Taken for a Bunco-Steerer When He Had the Growth Removed. The first few weeks after a man sets in to raise a full beard bring with them so much discomfort that many persons go through the ordeal while on their racations, says the New York Tribune. The feeling that something is wrong caused by a week's growth of hair on the face soon wears away in the mountain or by the lake-side, where every thing is more or less unconventional, or in Europe, where one meets few or no friends; and so the crowds returning to the city from the various summer resorts contain many bearded faces that were smooth a few months ago.

The young man who comes back with, as he thinks, a creditable showing on eheek and chin, is always chaffed more or less by his friends at the meagerness of the results of his efforts. Not infrequently he is driven to believe that he would better give up his attempt and begin over again on his next vacation, and he gets shaved. This happened a few days ago to a young man, just old enough to vote, who returned from a three months' absence in Europe with a beard. After having fun poked at his whiskers all day, he had them removed. The next morning. however, an incident occurred which made him regret that he had been so faint-hearted. He was walking in Broadway, when he met an Englishman with whom he had gotten well acquainted on his voyage home, and naturally addressed him by name and held out his hand to him. The young man could not understand the look of suspicion which came over his acquaintance's face, and was even more surprised when no attention was paid to his outstretched hand. The Englishman looked uneasily around. "Why, don't you recollect Mr. Soand-so, who came over on the steamer with you?" asked the puzzled American. "Are you-well, to be sure. I declare I didn't know you. Your having your beard shaved off made such a difference in your appearance. How are you?" and the Englishman grasped the hand that had fallen to the American's side. The foreigner then confessed that he had taken the other man for one of the-"bunco-steerers," of whose skill in finding out people's names he had been told. He was just about to call a policeman when he recegnized the American.

The young New Yorker now feels con vinced of his ability to raise a satisfactory beard, and tells the story to his friends to show them that their chaffing was unjust.

Going and Saying. He sat and looked at the busy editor for about fifteen minutes steadily. Finally he yawned sleepily and remarked: "There are some things in this world that go without saying." "I know it," snapped the editor, "but there are too darned many things that say a good deal without roles."

Ear-Rings in All Ages. The strange fashion of mutilating and adorning the human ear has been practiced and has been in vogue all over the world. It has especially enjoyed great favor among the Orientals, and by Per-sians, Babylonians, Lydians, Lybians and Carthagenians the ear-ring was Æsop has told us the tale of a mule which, from overfeeding, galloped about and felt gay, saying to himself: "My father, surely, was a bigh-mettled racer, and I am his own child in speed and spirit." Next day he was sick and weary; he then exclaimed: "I must have made a mistake; my father, after all, could have been only an ass." A man, after eating a good dinner, may feel extravagantly joyous; but next day (I don't mean you to infer he feels like an ass) he is surly and grim, his stomach and liver are sluggish, he is morose, despondent and "out of sorts" generally.
